DENIES RUMORS ABOUT BIG LAKE

HEALTH OFFICERS HAVE NOT CONDEMNED SUMMER RESORT

MAY MAKE INVESTIGATION

Discovery of Typhoid Germs Reported in Letter to Girl Student Here But Not Confirmed

Reports circulated in Maryville that Big Lake at Bigelow had been condemned by health authorities were declared unfounded today by Dr. J. F. Chandler, Holt County health officer. No report of the discovery of typhoid or other germs in the water of the lake has been made to him, Dr. Chandler said.

Rumors that the popular summer resort had been condemned were repeated frequently on the streets today. A student in the State Teachers' College who lives at Bigelow received a letter Tuesday from her mother, saying that bathing in the lake had been declared unsafe, because of the presence of typhoid fever germs. It did not say, however, that the resort had been ordered closed or that other restrictive measures would be enforced.

A long distance call t oOregon today by the Democrat-Forum resulted in the information that the resort is still open and that people of that vicinity are unaware of any such discovery as that reported here.

Dr. Chandler, who, as county health officer, has power to order an investigation, said nothing had been reported to him.

"I have no knowledge of any dangerous condtions", he said. "As far as I know, bathing in the lake is still safe, and there has been no condemnation or closing order. I will have an investigation made, however.

Many Maryville parties have taken outings at the Holt County resort and others are planned for the Fourth of July and future weekends.

MILLER-CRAYNOR MATCH IS FEATURE OF SECOND ROUND

Helen Miller of King City, won from Hester Craynor of Albany in the feature match of the second round of the girls tennis tourney at the College yesterday, the score being 7-5, 5-7, 6-4. Norma Goodspeed forfeited to Ruth Miller in this round. She was scheduled to play at 6:30 o'clock and had not appeared by 7:15 so the match was forfeited.

Two matches were played off in the afternoon. In the first Gladys Bookman won from Ellen Mitchell, 6-4, 1-6, 6-4. Lucile Bonham won from Helen Dean 6-3, 6-4. Both of these matches were closely contested

In the Miller-Craynor match every game was a hard fight from start to finish. Both girls were on their mettle and there were many good shots and returns. Both players had rooters on the sidelines and a great deal of excitement was displayed.

In the first set Miss Miller had a slight advantage, but in the second the breaks went the other way and with the score 5-3 against her, Miss Craynor took four straight games and won the set 7-5. In the third set Miss Miller won the first three games and then lost two. Then the games sawed back and forth until the count was four-all. At this period Miss Miller displayed some fast and accurate tennis and won the set 6-4. If she shows up as well in the coming matches as she did last night she bids well to be one of the finalists.

The schedule is as follows for today:

Ruth Miller vs. Gladys Bookman.
Helen Miller vs. Lucile Bonham.

STILLMAN FACES GRILLING IN CROSS EXAMINATION

Poughkeepsie, New York, June 30.—James Stillman, former president of the National City Bank of New York faced terrific grilling under cross examination on the witness stand, when hearings were resumed today in exbanker's suit fo rdivorce against Mrs. "Fifi" Stillman.

For the second time in the two days Stillman occupied the stellar role as witness in his own behalf in his suit against his wife and action against little Guy Stillman, whose paternity he disclaims. The most dramtic moment of the case came when Stillman faced his wife in court. He avoided her in every way possible, but Mrs. Stillman never took her eyes from her husband's face.

MRS. KABER FEARS WOMEN'S VERDICT

HER ATTORNEYS WILL CHALLANGE EVERY FEMININE JUROR

CASE MAY BE APPEALED

Presence of One Woman Will Be Ground For Demanding Decision by U. S. Supreme Court.

Cleveland, June 30.—Let the eyes of the women of the nation turn to the Kaber case.

Francis Poulsen, a counsel for Mrs. Katherine Kaber, alleged slayer of her husband, announced today that if the challanges of the defense are exhausted before every woman in the jury box is eliminated an appeal will be taken to the United States Supreme court to have that body determine whether the nineteenth amendment to the consitution enfranchising women gives them the right to serve on juries. Women sit on juries in Ohio since the adoption of this amendment.

The court has adjourned until Tuesday. The accused woman spent today reading Christian Science literature. When this fails as a solace the accused woman turns to her cell-mate, her daughter, Marion McArdle, 19, who is charged with complicity in the murder of Daniel Kaber, her mother's third husband.

Four women were among the seven tentative jurors selected yesterday. Each insisted in answer to questions by the defense that she would give a woman " the same fair trial", as a man. Mrs. Kaber's attorneys, having failed to bar them, will attempt now to eliminate women jurors from her case by the exercise of peremptory challenges. If their efforts fail they will make the presence of even one woman on the jury the point for an appeal in event of conviction.

There is a growing prejudice agains women jurors in Ohio, according to Francis Poulsen, one of Mrs. Kaber's attorneys.

"They haven't the experience necessary for jury service," he said. "They are relentless in judging their own sex. Nine out of ten women would have Mrs. Kaber electrocuted. Even after hearing all the horrible details of her story they would have no sympathy for her. They would not be able to understand because of their limited experiences in life. Men, because of their broader experiences, have more sympathy."

"As bloodless as a stone" is the common description of this thin, dark woman, who sits in the courtroom here, on trial for her life. Cold-bloodedly, they say, she fed arsenic to her sick husband, Daniel Kaber, wealthy publisher, until he was weak to the point of exhaustion and then hired an assassin who stabbed the helpless many twenty-four times.

By one side, she will be pictured to the jury as a diabolical murderess; by the other as a victim of the repulsive acts of a man diseased in body and mind. Frenzied by fear and according to her story first by consulting fortune tellers, then by the hate of Kaber, she sought a "way out" solace of Christian Science and last by the plotting of his death.

SEVERAL BOYS APPLY FOR TRAINING AT CAMP PIKE

Today is Last Day on Which Application for Free Vacation May be Made

With today the last day on which application can be made for admission to the Citizens' Military Training Camp at Camp Pike, several requests for blanks were made at the Chamber of Commerce Rooms.

Harley Bebout and Ira Young, students in the State Teachers' College, filled out and forwarded their application yesterday. E. E. Moore, who lives in the Sunnybrook neighborhood, near Graham, sent in his application last night. Glenn Hornbuckle and William Mapel of Maryville, secured blanks today.

Applications must be made by July 1, which is tomorrow. The government offers a month's vacation, from August 1 to August 30, absolutely free of charge and without obligation for further military service.

According to an article published in today's Kansas City Times, applications will be received as late as July 12, although no promise as to the disposition of the late ones will be made. A telegram received yesterday afternoon by E. M. Clendening, chairman of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce's committee on the Camp Pike training camp, from A. T. Perkins, chairman of the St. Louis, said nothing about closing the lists up there. Although the blanks will be received up to July 12, the telegram said, the men in charge wish to begin at once the wor kof classifying the applicants already in.

TOWNSHIP BOARD IS URGED TO PURCHASE ROAD GRADER

Chandler and Bagby Demonstrate Combination Tractor and Grader—Roads Need Attention.

An effort to induce the Polk Township Board to purchase a road grading outfit for use on roads leading into Maryville is being made this week by the firm of Chandler and Bagby, which is demonstrating a new combination engine and grader, which also pulls a drag.

A demonstration was made yesterday on the river road east of Maryville, where deep ruts made the highway almost impassable. One man operated both engine and grader. Obstructions were cut down by the grader, while a ten-foot drag attached behind the grader broke up the heavy clods and smoothed the road.

The township board has a tractor which was used for road work when first purchased, but it has not been used recently. Much pressure has been brought to bear on the board to purchase an outfit by which the roads of the township can be improved and kept in good condition all the time. No work is being done on the roads at all at the present time.

The apparatus being demonstrated this week is recommended as both efficient and economical, as one man takes the place of two.

HEADS NEW DEPARTMENT

Successful Applicant is Graduate of University of Missouri—Comes From Mound City.

H. G. Tilley of Mound City has been selected by the Board of Education to teach vocational in the Maryville High School next year. The board's offer has been sent to the successful applicant, but he has not yet signed a contract.

Tilley is a graduate of the Bethany High School and of the College of Agriculture of the University of Missourie, where he received the degree of Bachelor of Science in Agriculture in 1920. He has been teacher of vocational agriculture for two years in the Mound City High School.

The course in vocational agriculture is to be offered in the Maryville school for the first time next year. The board agreed to pay the instructor $200 a month for twelve months, of $2,400 a year. He must meet the requirements both of the state and the federal department of vocational education, which will provide funds for the work under the provisoins of the Smith-Hughes act.

With the employment of an instructor in vocational agriculture, Maryville High School will have one of the most complete and up-to-date curriculums in the state. Besides the regular four-year school course maintained at the highest standard, the school now has a commercial department and the Smith-Hughes work for girls and vocational agriculture for boys. The enrollment of students has been more than doubled in the past five years, and a further increase is expected with the inception of the new work.

MODERN BATTLESHIPS IS NOT OBSOLETE, TEST SHOWS

On Board U. S. S. Henderson at Sea, June 30.—The officers of the Atlantic fleet, who followed the attack on the disarmed battleship, Iowa, today are confident that the test has proven that the modern battleship is comparatively safe from aerial bombarments. About eighty bombs were aimed at the Iowa by four bomber machines that carried out the attack. The official reports show only two direct hits upon the Iowa.

The Iowa was crewless, being directed and controlled in its maneuvers by radio flashes from another vessel.

WESLEYAN QUARTET GIVES CONCERT TO LARGE CROWD

Silver Offering Nets More Than Usual Admission Charge, Visiting Singers Say.

An excellent concert was given last night by the Missouri Wesleyan Quartet of Cameron, according to music lovers, who heard the program. The lower floor of the First Methodist church, where the concert was held, was well filled by the crowd.

Instead of an admission charge, a silver offering was taken and it was said by a member of the quartet to be the largest they had yet received, even though they have appeared in many other towns as large including St. Joseph and Chillicothe.

The quartet is traveling in northwest Missouri in the interest of the Epworth League Institute of the Missouri Conference which will be held at Cameron on July 25-31. The members of the quartet are Finis Frazer, Kenneth Crawford, George Sharp and Harry Thomas.

Following the concert, the Epworth League of the First Methodist church, gave an informal reception in honor of the quartet.

BROWN'S SAXAPHONE SIX MASTER INSTRUMENTALISTS

The Whole World Dances to Music, Which Moans and Groans —to Play at Dance.

They came, they played, they put it over.

Brown's Saxaphone Six heralded as wizards of the instruments they play instrumentalists who "make it moan" and " make it groan", and makers of phonograph records to which the whole world dances, delighted their audience at the Empire Theatre last night. They will play again tonight, the last time here, with a change of program.

Attired in the costume of jesters, the six lads played a repertoire that ran the gamut from the raggiest syncopation to the dreamiest of dreamy melodies. The concert was almost continuous, the musicians blending the last notes of one selection with the first of the next. Comedy was provided by Billy Markwith, blackface comedian, assisted by the entire aggregation.

The audience was not so large as had been expected and receipts were not enough to pay the large sum demanded by the sextette for their concerts. Many of those whoe attended last night, however, will return for the second concert tonight and the favorable comment of the first night audience will bring many others.

Since the announcement that the Sextette would appear here, dance fans have been eagerly urging that the saxaphone artists be secured to furnish music at a dance. The manager of the aggregation has released them in response to these requests and they will play tonight at the W. O. W. Hall. They will play many of the dance pieces which are already familiar to owners of phonographs and other music now scoring a success in the East.

TELEPHONE USERS IN A CONTROVERSY

ASSESSMENT CAUSES DISPUTE AT BURLINGTON JUNCTION

CLAIMS AUDIT IS DENIED

Officials of Company Refuse to Admit Legality of Mass Meeting Held Last Saturday

Patrons of the Mutual Telephone Co. of Burlington Junction are engaged in a controversy over the affairs of the company, with one side claiming a recent assessment unjustified, charging that an audit of the books has been denied them, while the other insists that the assessments was made to wipe out a deficit incurred during the operation of the company the past year and that the books are now and have always been open to inspection.

Disgruntled patrons held a mass meeting at Burlington Junction last Saturday, at which seventy-five persons were present, according to E. H. Bearce. The purpose of the meeting was to determine the reason for the assessment and to elect a director to succeed John Porter, who was recently elected but who did not qualify for the place.

The patrons at the mass meeting elected C. C. Reavis to fill the vacancy on the board of directors and selected a committee composed of John Fox, J. R. Weable and E. H. Bearce to audit the books of the company. According to the version of that faction, the present officials of the company refuse to recognize the meeting as legal because no directors were present and will not allow an audit. They have issued the following notice:

"We the auditing committee duly elected at a mass meeting held in Burlington Junction, Mo., on June the 25th, 1921, to investigate the financial standing of the Mutual telephone company find that we are refused access to the books as Mr. Monk and president and secretary refuses to recognize the proceeding of said meeting.

J. R. WEABLE
JOHN FOX
E. H. BEAREE.

Officials of the telephone company on the other hand say that the audit was not refused. President Monk told the dissatisfied committee, according to one of the company's linemen, that they were welcome to inspect the books in the company's offices but that they could not be removed.

The assessment of $1.25 on each patron, it is explained was to cover a deficit of approximately $750. Of 415 patrons, 400 have already paid the assessment without complaint the old directors say, and the present controversy was caused by a small minority. The audit should not have been called for until the regular annual meeting in September, the officials hold.

The singers from the colored church of Maryville, the ones giving an entertainment in Pickering recently, are advertised to be in Hopkins on Friday night of this week and a few from here plan to attend, there being nothing quite as sweet as the old melodies sung by the colored folks. They give popular as well as sacred selections.

MINISTER URGES MORE PAINT

London, June 30—That age-old suspicion that most of the dope of Beatrice Fairfax and other "advisers to the loverlorn" is really shoved into print by various mere men, in overgrown beards and shirtsleeves tongue in one cheek, gets a jolt.

Maybe it's the minister.

A minister of the gospel to the village of Foxley, pens an announcement which brands him an adept. If he hasn't been conducting an advice-to-lovers column, Northcliffe, the British auger-publisher, should send one of his bright young men immediately to sign a contract.

The high cost of being married has been increased by an addition to the cost of getting married.

"The Ecclesiastical Commissioners have raised the fees for marriages. The clergyman's minimum, which used to be $1.60 (to translate), or there-outs, is now $3.38.

"Let us hope this raising of the fee will not make the swains in our parishes more shy, more hesitating, more cool and calculating.

"If it does, then the village maidens must rise to the occasion and see to their charms and show the stern and faltering by extra arts and blandishments, by an offensive more bewitching and coy, that they are well worth the extra $1.78, and a good deal more into the bargain."

It is not recorded whether the emigration of the village swains has started.

High Spots in Rising Careers of Champion and Challenger

JACK DEMPSEY

Hailed as the greatest pugilist who ever succeeded to the world's heavyweight championship, Jack Dempsey rose from the rank of an obscure third-rater to the highest pinnacle of his chosen profession in a few short months in 1918-19.

The conqueror of Jess Willard is descended from fighting stock. His parents are of Scotch, Irish and Indian origin. By nature, however, he is a big, cheerful and friendly boy. He became champion at the age of twenty-four.

One of a family of ten children, Dempsey found it necessary to get out and hustle for himself at an early age, and following such occupations as shipbuilding, mining and other labors which are conductive to the making of steel muscles, he developed into a perfect specimen of manhood a year or so before he reached his majority.

Friendly bouts with his fellow workers in the shipyards of the Far West and elsewhere and the settlement of all of his disputes in rough and tumble fistcuffs convinced young Dempsey that he had missed his vocation. At the age of twenty he decided that he wanted to be a pugilist but being uneducated in the scientific points of boxing he found the going anything but encouraging and for several years met with little but disappointment, often being forced to "ride the rods" because of a lack of funds.

Kearns Smells Meat

In the Winter of 1917-18, having returned to the shipyards convinced that he was a failure as a boxer, he was sought out by Jack Kearns, a Pacific Coast promoter and manager of boxers. Kearns liked Dempsey's looks. He believed that in the tall straight young shipbuilder he saw a future world's champion, and after some little coaxing he persuaded Dempsey to try it all over again.

Under Kearn's management Dempsey was carried along by easy stages for a few months. He found that with a manager in whom he found at once a business advisor and a companion he was getting along admirably well, and his old ambitions came rushing back. He had previously been under contract to John "Barber" Reisler, a New York promoter, but split with Reisler when he became discouraged after several poor showings in the East.

Victory after victory, many of them by the knockout route, in from one to four rounds, brought Dempsey rapidly to the front as an aspirant to the title. Many critics refused to credit Dempsey as a fighter with championship calibre, averring that he was being fed on "setup".

In 1918, however, the "Salt Lake Terror" polished off such rugged battlers as Gunboat Smith, Carl Morris, Bill Brennan, Arthur Pelky, Porky Flynn, Battling Levinsky and other lesser lights in from one to five rounds, beating them all by knocking them out. His knockout punch now became a byword in the boxingworld, and when, at Harrison, N. J., he knocked out Fred Fulton, the Minnesota giant in one round on July 27, 1918, the fistic world was ready to admit his class and he became the logical opponent for Jess Willard, the giant cowboy champion.

Tex Rickard's Offer

Tex Rickard, the famous promoter, signed Willard and Dempsey to engage in a championship battle at Toledo, Ohio, July 4, 1919, guaranteeing the champion $101,000 for his end—the biggest purse ever offered a pugilist up to that time. Dempsey received $27,500 to meet the giant from Kansas.

Both fighters trained for the battle at Toledo and because of Willard's un-popularity, interest in the fight was at a fever heat when the day of battle arrived. Willard entered the ring a slight favorite in the betting among many old time followers of the ring, who believed he was too big to be defeated. He towered above the Salt Lake youth and held an advantage of some fifty pounds in weight.

In the very first round Dempsey flew at Willard and staggered the massive champion with an avalanche of blows that beat him down to the canvas. From that moment Willard was a beaten man. It was only a question of how much punishment he could stand. He managed to weather the second round, though fearfully punished. In the third Dempsey beat his man unmercifully, attempting to land what would have been a "merciful" knockout blow. At the bell Willard staggered limply to his corner and failed to come out for the fourth round. The throwing of a towel into the ring by one of his seconds made Jack Dempsey the new champion of the world.

Since winning the championship Dempsey has engaged in but two bouts of importance, but he won both of them by knockouts. On September 6, 1920, he stopped Billy Miske in three rounds at Benton Harbor, Mich. On December 14, of last year he knocked out Bill Brennan for a second time, winning in the twelfth round of a scheduled fifteen-round bout at Madison Square Garden. Dempsey was in poor condition for his bout with Brennan.

A victory that gave Dempsey as much satisfaction as any other was scored in court at San Francisco where he was acquited of chargers of evading the draft law on June 15, 1920. Aside from the Miske and Brennan bouts Dempsey has appeared on the stage and in the movies.

He was born at Manassa, Col., June 23, 1895.

GEORGES CARPENTIER

Georges Carpentier, who was born at Lleven, France, near Lens, January 12, 1894, of French stock, has been a professional boxer ever since he was in his 'teens. He has been boxing eight years longer than has the world's champion, Jack Dempsey.

He is the only boxer of note in the history of the ring who has won the boxing championship of his country in every division from bantam to heavyweight, and he is easily the brightest star of the ring that France has ever produced.

Carpentier's parents expected him to become a coal miner, as his father and brothers worked in the mines at Lens, but when he was but a boy Professor Francois Descamps, then a young man himself, discovered him at a fair, persuaded the parents to permit the boy to learn the rudiments of "la savate" and "la boxe", and piloted him successfully to the heavyweight championship of Europe.

He began boxing as an amateur when only thirteen years of age. This was in 1907, when boxing was beginning to be popular in France. He was both skilful and aggressive, and in 1909 scored many victories, defeating among others, Charles Ledoux the French bantamweight champion.

Won in All Divisions

Carpentier took on weight quickly and two years later he was meeting and defeating men in the welterweight division. The Frenchman scored the first sensational victory when he knocked out Jim Sullivan the English middleweight in two rounds at Ghent, the following year, Carpentier after being knocked down twice by Bombardier Wells, the English heavyweight, knocked out the British representative in the fourth round. The fact that a French lad nineteen years old and only a middleweight had knocked out the cleverest English heavyweight seemed to some of the latter's backers as a fluke. Carpentier dispelled the doubt, however, when he went over to London and knocked out Wells a second time, ending the bout in the opening round. Forty days afterwards Carpentier fought Pat O'Keefe the English middleweight champion and scored a knockout in the second round.

Beaten by American Negro

Joe Jeannette, the American negro heavyweight, defeated Carpentier early in 1914, but after that and prior to the declaration of war between France and Germany the French champion won decisions from Kid Jackson and Gunboat Smith, in each case winning on a foul.

A few hours after the Smith fight Carpentier who was in England, returned to France on the night boat in answer to his country's call to arms and the following day was in uniform.

During his early ring career Carpentier grew rapidly from a bantamweight to a light heavyweight and beat the European champions in each class as he progressed. His popularity among the French people was unbounded and he amassed a fortune variously estimated from $200,000 to $500,000. Most of this money he invested in coal mines near Lens, where he was born, and he lost everything there by the German invasion.

Defeats Beckett.

During the war Carpentier was in the Aviation corps and received many decorations from his country for his services in fighting the Germans.

After the war ended he returned to the ring and his most notable battles since then have been brilliant knockout victories over Joe Beckett, the British champion, of whom he disposed in fifty seconds; Grundhoven, the Belgian champion, who was knocked out in two rounds at Monte Carlo last year, and Battling Levinsky, whom he defeated by knockout in the fourth round at Newark, N. J., during his second visit to this country in 1920.

During the early months of the present year Carpentier has toured Europe, appearing on the stage and giving exhibitions of his prowess. Everywhere he was received with acclaim and at the time he sailed from France for this country to start training for his meeting with Dempsey European sportsmen had made him a 3 to 1 favorite in the betting. Carpentier was married early in 1920 and has a little daughter.

FIGHTERS END TRAINING TODAY FOR JULY 3 BOUT

Both Carpentier and Dempsey Are in Fine Fettle, Says Corbett—Georges' Probable Policy

BY JAMES J. CORBETT

Former World's Heavyweight Champion

(Written Expressly for The International News Service).

(Copyright, 1921 by International News Service)

New York, June 30.—This is the last day on which Champion Jack Dempsey and Challenger Georges Carpentier will don a glove in preparation for Saturday's fight.

Both the champion and his challenger are in good condition. I have seen both men in action recently. Dempsey looks fine. His stomach looks good, too. I think he has trained seriously. I will knew more about that—everyone will—after a round or two.

Carpentier is in fine shape and his morale is perfect—better—I believe, than that of the champion. I'd bet my life on Georges' condition and I think he will enter the ring hinghly confident. In fact, the closer the day of the fight approaches the lighter hearted Carpentier seems.

"I've read some talk about Dempsey's wind not being the best. If this is true, I've failed to notice it. Working out under the hot sun in Atlantic City is no easy thing for a fellow when he works fast, as Dempsey has been doing. Under such conditions he cannot get enough air breathing through his nose and he does quite a breathing through his mouth. I used to do the same. I think nearly ever fighter does.

Carpentier for instance, boxes a lot with his mouth open. This means nothing in particular except that he cannot get enough fresh air through his nose, and you can be sure in the mixups neither Jack nor Georges will leave the lower jaw hanging open to receive the shock of a swiftly propelled punch.

The atmosphere around the two camps as the day of the fight draws near is a different as day and night.

At Airport the fight is over now. Manager Jack Kearns, Dempsey, trainer, Jack Hayes everyone, in fact, has settled that question in his mind. The Airport camp is rather cocksure. This is the best thing in the world, though the vast majority of critics also have settled on Dempsey as the winner, it means that the champion and his handlers may be over-confident and I'll tell the world that I know from experience what over-confidence sometimes does to a fellow.

Carpentiers camp is just the other way round. Everyone from Georges down is willing and eager to get all the advice they can. They are not cocksure but they are not doing any unnecessary worrying either.

While he told me nothing of his plans for the Dempsey fight. I imagine that when Carpentier gets into that ring it will be with the intention of letting Dempsey force things and attempting to box him at long range. Georges believes he can put across a winning punch once the opening comes and he will be content to wait for it. He very probably figures also that Dempsey may tire himself out and that this is a point well worth considering.

In the Willard fight at Toledo, Dempsey fought himself out in the first round. He gave Willard everything he had and won his fight. No fighter every extended more energy in one round than did Jack. But against Carpentier this sort of a campaign may be unsuccessful, for Georges is quick of foot as he is of hand and Dempsey will not find him as easy to hit.

Dempsey has one glaring fault, as I see it. And that is failure to relax. He stands there ready to hit, muscles set and firm. He did it at Toledo when Willard was weaving around like a drunken man and unable to harm him. He simply doesn't know the meaning of relaxation and in his case with those tremendously heavy arms, failure to relax is bound to result in tiring out the muscles.

If Carpentier can carry him along, therefore, he will conserve his strength while Dempsey expends his, for the Frenchman has discovered the secret of relaxing. He can go the distance the better for it, too.

HAD NERVOUS BREAKDOWN

Mrs. Ireland Permits us to Publish this Letter for the Benefit of Others Who Are in Her Condition

Warsaw, Missouri.—"For five years I was weakly, nervous and in a run-down condition. Then I had a nervous breakdown and doctors said I would never be well again. After I took seven bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was healthier, stronger, and felt better than I ever did in my life before. I can't praise the Compound enough and will recommend it to all women. You may publish this letter if you think it will help others."—Mrs. FLOYD IRELAND, R. R. 1, Warsaw, Missouri.

Nervous women are both ailing and wretched, and with a nervous breakdown all joy goes out of a woman's life. It is said that the ills peculiar to women act on the nerves like a firebrand.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so successful in overcoming such conditions, a large number of American women who were once great sufferers from nerve troubles owe their present health and comfort to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

A JUNIOR FARMERS' WEEK

November 9, 10 and 11, Set Apart for Boys and Girls

Missouri boys and girls are to have a Farmers' Week all their own, according to a decision announced at Columbia today. On November 9, 10 and 11, the equipment of the Missouri College of Agriculture will be placed at the disposal of the junior agriculturists of the state.

This event will consist largely of contests and exhibits participated in by the boys and girls clubs and the students in vocation home economics and vocational agriculture high school classes throughout the state. All-day programs will occupy the three days named and on each date there will be a general night program.

This new departure has been established by the college in order to give the boys and girls the exclusive use of the college facilities and the housing accommodations of the city—a privilege that has been impossible when junior contests were held in connection with the usual winter event of Farmers' Week.

Also by having these junior contests in livestock judging and grain grading in early November the state winners will be enabled to participate in the International at Chicago.

What to Read This Summer

Columbia, Mo., June 30.—A talk on vacation reading by Miss Lura Lewis of the English Department of the University of Missouri was the feature of the Y. W. C. A. meeting held recently at Read Hall, the women's dormitory. Miss Lewis emphasized the wisdom of forming good habits in reading as in other matters. She advised the girls to make their reading this summer count in their education.

Miss Lewis said that every one should read "Main Street" this summer. She also suggested the works of Leonard Merrick, W. J. Locke, Arnold Bennett, Joseph Conrad, John Galsworthy and "Moon Calf" by Floyd Dell as the best modern fiction. In verse she advised the reading of collected modern verse such as "High Tide," Rittinhouse's books of best modern verse and various collections of new poetry, both American and English. She said the most worthwhile magazines were Harpers' Magazine, Scribners' Magazine, The Century, and the Atlantic Monthly.

"An Ode to Tightville."

(From Boone (Iowa) C. of C. Bulletin).

Tightville was a little old town,
Out at the heels and much run down;
For Tightville was afraid to spend,
Afraid to give, afraid to lend.

Playing safe was Tightville's game,
And playing safe the town went lame,
Each dollar that it tried to save,
Drew it nearer to the grave.

Nobody sold, for nobody bought,
Teachers cost money, so nobody taught;
The people died from typhoid chills,
For none would stand pure water bills.

The undertaker alone grew fat
And his job came to end at that
For no new folks came to Tightville town,
Out at the heels and all run down.

But the banks played Tightville a little joke,
Since nothing was doing they all went broke,
And the money the people had saved with care,
Melted away into thinnest air.
So Tightville bereft of all its pelf
Slowly and solemnly buried itself.

Epitaph.

Here lies a town, if anyone axes,
Died from fear of paying taxes.

MANY INDUSTRIES TIED TO TOBACCO

Prohibition of Weed Would Mean Big Financial Loss to Allied Trades.

WHO USES THE MATCH?

The Smoker Mainly—Also Responsible for Spending Hundreds of Millions Annually for Licorice, Sugar, Coal, Cigar Boxes, Tin Foil, Etc.

By GARRET SMITH

"Got a match?"

How many times a day is that question asked in these United States? How many more times is the question unnecessary because most pockets are kept well supplied with the useful little article? Anyhow, inasmuch as it is estimated that there are 30,000,000 tobacco users in the country, we would guess that the answer to that question would run into the hundreds of millions.

For if it weren't for the smokers in these days of electric lights how many matches would be used? A pretty small proportion of the number of these "sticks of blazes" produced in the country every year. Abolish tobacco and the match business would be shot to pieces.

But the match business is only one of a dozen or more allied industries which derive large revenues directly or indirectly from the tobacco trade and would suffer heavily if national prohibition of tobacco were to go into effect as some of our reformers would have it. The annual sales of tobacco products, based on retail prices, is estimated at $1,937,000,000. Of the cost of producing and selling this quantity of cigars, cigarettes and other forms of the weed, some hundreds of million dollars are paid out for other things than the raw tobacco and labor of making it up.

$25,000,000 a Year for Boxes

For example, the tobacco trade consumes each year 45,000,000 pounds of licorice, 50,000,000 pounds of sugar, both used in flavoring tobacco, and 650,000 tons of coal. It is estimated that the value of wooden cigar boxes used is $25,000,000 a year, quite an item to the lumber business and to manufacturers of the boxes.

In making these boxes 550,000 pounds of nails are employed. Other large items used in making and preparing tobacco for sale are tin and lead foil, paper for bags and cigarette wrappers, cloth for tobacco bags, labels, coupons, etc., involving the printing trade extensively.

Then building contractors and manufacturers of machinery are largely interested. Investments in plants and machinery employed in manufacturing tobacco are estimated at $102,000,000. Replacement, up-keep and interest on the investment make no small sum annually.

And let realty men note there are approximately 325,000 tobacco farms in the country, with a total estimated valuation of $160,000,000. Of further interest to real estate men is the fact that there are 700,000 retail establishments selling tobacco, involving a total rental and up-keep impossible to estimate, besides the large amount of office space occupied by administrative branches of the general business.

The insurance men, too, have their share of the pickings. The tobacco business pays out annually $7,000,000 in premiums in the United States.

And there are the railroads who reap revenue from 2,210,000 tons of tobacco products every year.

As for the advertising business, here again it is impossible to form any estimate of the enormous annual outlay.

The prohibition of tobacco would also knock a good-sized hole in the receipts of the United States government. The internal revenue receipts from tobacco for the fiscal year 1920 amounted to $295,939,355.44. Customs duties provided an additional $25,000,000 in round figures, making the total revenue return to the government $320,000,000.

Influence on Popular Sentiment

It is this interlocking of the tobacco business with so many other interests and the vast amount of financial loss that would be involved in the abolition of tobacco that is one of the most serious aspects of the proposal to prohibit the sale of tobacco, a proposal, however, which has little support by public sentiment if the newspaper editors of the country are correct in their estimate of that sentiment.

In a poll of the editors made recently by the Tobacco Merchants' Association of the United States, through the Press Service Company of New York City, 95 per cent of the 7,847 editors who replied expressed the opinion that the people of their communities were opposed to any law against tobacco. As these editors represent some 80,000,000 readers the results form a pretty general test of national opinion.

In their remarks accompanying their replies many of the editors expressed it as their opinion that the opposition of their communities to the abolition of tobacco was based to some extent at least on the damage such a change would do to the business interests of the community. This was particularly true in the tobacco growing states and centers where there were large tobacco plants.

But when the extent of the business involved in the allied interests of the tobacco trade is considered, as above briefly outlined, it is clear that there is hardly a section of the country that would not be affected directly or indirectly by abolishing tobacco.

NO LONGER OLD AT THIRTY

Women Have Proved Conclusively That Age Is Not at All a Matter of Years.

Perhaps women who are not at all sensitive about their age are still in a minority. But their number is growing. In almost any gathering where women chatter pleasantly and with some intimacy about things which interest them you find at least one woman who cheerfully admits that she is not thirty-five, but forty-five, or that it is a very long time since she was thirty.

One of the tragic conventions which have helped to wreck women's lives is this stupid tradition that at any given age a woman gets old. Years ago most women celebrated their thirtieth birthdays with a sense of depression. With greater common sense, women at least began to see that even after thirty they might enjoy life, and that the games and amusements and joys which are possible at twenty are no less possible at forty.

Today there lingers this ancient superstition that if you have reached a certain age you must not admit the fact. But it will not endure long. Now that we hear of a woman of ninety playing really capable golf, of women past fifty banding themselves together in cheery fashion as golfing veterans, of women of every and any age enjoying life, it will become unfashionable to conceal one's age.—From the Continental Edition of the London Mail.

SURVIVED STORM AT SAMOA

Major General Lejeune One of the American Sailors Who Came Safely Through Hurricane.

Secretary Edwin Denby of the navy is a fan on the history of that branch of the service and never misses an opportunity to expetiate on its glories.

He was speaking at a Navy league dinner not long ago and vividly described the events as they occurred when, in 1889, a hurricane caught three of our ships, three German ships and one flying the British flag in the harbor at Apia, Samoa, and sank them all except the Britisher, which managed to get to sea.

He told how the American ships were battered to pieces on the rocks, how the Vandalia sank and her crew rode out the storm in the rigging which still protruded from the water.

Three seats down the table from Mr. Denby sat Major General John A. Lejeune, commandant of marines. The secretary of the navy did not know at the time that Gen. Lejeune, then a naval cadet, was one of the lads who hung on to the rigging of the Vandalia through the duration of the storm.

The Spring Straw Hat.

All winter long man wears a hat that is easy and comfortable—a friendly, slouchy, well-worn sort of thing that he can pull down over his ears when the wind blows or throw into the air at a football game. It's just the sort of clothing a man ought to wear, not tyrannical but companionable. And then along comes spring. In the spring, say the poets, the spirit of man breaks its bonds. A fellow feels restless and indomitable, fit for anything and free as the wind. He brooks no restraint, not he. He looks upon his good old cap or hat and decides he ought to buy another. And he does. He goes and gets himself a straw hat—a stiff, uncomfortable, unreliable sort of thing that is faithless to every passing breeze. A man can't roll it up and put it in his pocket, he can't throw it into the air, he can't pull it down over his ears, he can't do anything with it except wear it daintily and carefully, until the time comes to smash it in the autumn and go back to the old cloth hat. And that's the best proof of the madness of spring—not love, not blooming flowers, but the new straw hat that leaves a red mark on a fellow's forehead.—San Francisco Call.

Diagnosis.

All at once a soldier gave a cry and hurried across to the officer in charge, holding at arm's length a hard, heavy mass.

After due examination the officer pronounced it a suspicious metal which would endanger public safety, and started to question the workman in whose possession it was found.

"And you think that's dynamite, do ye?" asked Pat. "Be jabers, I've been puzzlin' my head over it all day. You see, my old woman calls it cake."

Giant Telegraph System.

According to the United States bureau of the census there are 21 telegraph companies operating in this country, with a total pole line of 241,012 miles and 1,888,793 miles of single wire. More than 155,000,000 messages are transmitted each year. For the convenience of customers 28,805 offices are scattered over the country. A total of 39,600 employees receive salaries amounting to nearly $40,000,000 annually.

Potash Discovered in Japan.

Potassium salts, used as a basis in the manufacture of glass and soap, have been recently discovered in nearly all of the numerous salt wells in Szechuan Province, China, which range in depth from 1,000 to 3,000 feet, states an issue of Finance and Commerce.

Barney's Wedding Suit

By WILLIAM FALL

(©, 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

"You will be careful, will you not, dear?" pleaded pretty Mrs. Ainslee, the bride of a year. "If anything should happen to you—"

"But nothing is going to happen to me, little chick," said bluff, happy Bob, her husband. "See here, you sensible pet," said Bob, "Once a year the managers at our establishment meet. Suggestions as to improving trade, getting acquainted, promotions awarded—and I expect one, mind you—and real, good jolly fellowship all around."

"Just think, though if they should tempt you, Bob!" persisted Mrs. Ainslee. "A dark night, a lonely neighborhood, miles away from home. Look at that man I hire to do our chores, and think what temptation has cost him."

"Eh! oh, yes," responded Bob, glancing past the porch at a man piling up kindling wood in the back yard. "Your protege, he looks fairly comfortable, for all these temptations you tell about."

"Just now, maybe, but he was a wreck, and I reformed him. He looks so comfortable," explained Laura Ainslee proudly, "because I give him all your old clothes. He's waiting for the season to pass to get the ones you're wearing now."

"Oh, he is!" remarked Bob. "Well, he'll have to wait two full months for this one."

"He's patient, dear," said Laura. "Oh, Bob I feel so pleased with old Barney, as they call him. He's given up drinking and is saving up money. And what do you think! He is actually talking of getting married to a widow who owns a restaurant car. I have an idea he is counting on that suit of yours for the wedding."

"Well, good-by," smiled Bob." Home the earliest I can, and clear water, dear, believe me."

A fine fellow of his word, honest Bob went his way. A big-hearted little philanthropist, Laura proceeded to the yard.

"That was my husband, Barney," she said.

"Yes'm; often seen him; often remarked how happy he oughter be with a wife like you," bowed and scraped the politic tramp.

"That suit he has on—I told him you were waiting for it."

Barney only grinned his delight at the announcement.

"See here, mum," said the tramp, "the fellow who wouldn't try and make good after being treated like a man as you have done, is no gentleman. That suit!" added Barney gloatingly, "say, I dream about it nights. I've sort of made it the top stone of respectability. My, won't I shine. I'm deeply grateful, mum, truly, humbly grateful."

Barney finished his task. Then he came around to the back door to report. Mrs. Ainslee handed him a half dollar.

Barney felt quite proud as he thought of the anticipated garb. He went to a restaurant, and then he strolled around for an hour, and finally landed at a moving picture show.

It was eleven o'clock when he followed the crowd out to the street. It was drizzling a trifle. As he passed a well-known hotel, several gentlemen came out, shook hands in parting, and one of them, turning up his coat collar, started on at a breakneck pace.

"Hello!" suddenly exclaimed Barney with a start and a stare, "Why, that's my suit!"

It certainly was Bob Ainslee.

"I've got to catch him," breathed the ardent pursuer. "It's beginning to rain harder. Say, he'll spoil my suit. How careless some people are!"

About to hail Mr. Ainslee, the tramp broke into his best run instead. Passing a dark alley, Bob was halted by three footpads.

"Hands up, boss!" ordered the leader.

Biff! bang—"Police!"— thus Barney, his umbrella swinging like a flail, his voice braying out in a hoarse war hoop. At the corner a policeman appeared. The baffled hold-up men darted back into the alley. Bob Ainslee picked up his watch where it had fallen when Barney struck up the pilfering arm of the footpad.

"Why, my man! You arrived in the nick of time, didn't you?" hailed jolly Bob.

"Yes sir. Umbrella, please, sir; you're getting wet."

"O, never mind that."

"But it's—it's my suit!" explained Barney desperately.

"Eh?" Ha! why, it's my wife's protege, I declare! How came you here?" Barney explained.

"See here, Barney," he said in a friendly way. "You call at my house tomorrow. There will be something waiting there for you."

Mrs. Ainslee beamed with delight as her husband walked into the house half an hour earlier than she expected.

"You can pack up this suit for that active protege of yours tomorrow, Laura," announced Bob. "He's earned it."

Then he told her. There were thrills as Bob depicted the great rough footpads, and throbs of delight as he related how her kindness to the tramp had prevented a robbery, possibly worse.
